

Sperm Banking

A Sperm Bank is a licensed fertility center where sperm is collected and stored for possible use in the future.

Many cancer treatments can damage the ability to produce sperm, causing infertility (inability to father a child). Sometimes normal sperm production resumes after treatment but sometimes it does not. We recommend that you explore your options for sperm banking prior to starting treatment.

A list of local sperm bank centers is listed below. You can choose one of these or find a center on your own. Once you select the sperm banking facility, contact them to make an appointment for consultation prior to starting any treatment.

Rutgers Cancer Institute of New Jersey may need to verify your diagnosis and perform some lab tests. If this is the case, please contact your healthcare team at:

- Adults: 732-235-2465
- Pediatric: 732-235-5437.

Some insurance plans cover sperm banking. The cost varies from one sperm bank to another with an additional annual cost for storage. Most facilities offer discounted rates for cancer patients. For financial assistance, the LIVESTRONG fertility program is available. Please discuss options and/or concerns with your healthcare team.

See below for listing of area sperm bank locations and some financial assistance resources.
